Wastewater (Ww) is discharged in large quantities from livestock farms into streams, rivers and the surrounding land. The objective of this work was to determine the effect of combining cattle farms and chicken farms on the quality of Ww. The study was carried out using a total of 20 batches of Ww obtained from 20 livestock farms and a control tank. The temperature, pH and redox potentials of Ww were determined, and the physicochemical parameters (total solid, total chemical oxygen demand, total nitrogen, ammonium, nitrate, phosphate, potassium and sulfate) and biological oxygen demand were determined. Total phosphorus was evaluated using the method of Bakinghoff and Baumann. The concentration of chemical oxygen demand, total nitrogen, total sulfate, total phosphorus and potassium in Ww ranged from 60.8 to 795.1 mg/l, 3.0 to 12.4 mg/l, 1.07 to 2.78 g/l, 0.49 to 1.50 g/l and 183.8 to 989.6 mg/l, respectively. There was no significant difference ($p > 0.05$) in the mean values of the physicochemical parameters between Ww obtained from livestock farms and the control tank
