This means that once you open the app, it will automatically calculate all the recoverable disk shape, displaying in a brief report so that you can get an idea just how bad the situation is. This report includes the amount of space you can recover, the total disk space of your hard drive, the number of duplicate files found, and the amount of space occupied by large files. The UI is another pro, as the minimalist design and great choice of colors make this app very lighthearted. A fast and efficient disk cleanup tool This automation of all processes done by the app is also extended towards the actual disk cleaning process since once you are done with reading the report and analyzing whether the duplicates found are indeed just that, you are one button away from freeing up your system. By default, the app is set to scan your music, pictures, and video folders, but more folders can be added afterward just as well. To avoid any possible mistakes, the app lets you read up the briefing again just as you are about to press the cleanup confirmation button, making this app fool-proof.
